LIVESTOCK DEALER ACCUSED OF FORGING 4 DIFFERENT NOTES

John James Walker, Negro, Makes Denial On The Witness Stand

4 DIFFERENT AMOUNTS

Hearing in Case Will Be Resumed When Court
Convenes Today

DOYLESTOWN, June 2—After nearly one entire day's testimony in criminal court here, John James Walker, 55-year-old Negro farmer and livestock dealer, who lives near Petersburg in Northampton county, took the stand and denied that he had forged the names of six individuals involving four charges of uttering a forged instrument and being concerned in the uttering of a forged instrument.

The trial, which began late Wednesday afternoon, involves five well-known Northampton county men and women, Fred Manning, John and Ida Sutton, David and Minnie Latshaw, and a Carbon county farmer, Warren M. Dunbar, whose names were forged on promissory notes amounting to $71.97, $135.85, $97.78 and $312.19 respectively.

It will be resumed today before Judge Calvin S. Boyer, who interjected a bit of humor into the proceedings on Thursday afternoon when shown a sample of Hungarian-German writing.

Fred Manning, Nazareth, R. D. 1, a farmer whose name was forged on a $71 note, showed Judge Boyer a sample of his handwriting which Judge Boyer, attempting to read, said looked like "Pennsylvania German."

"Perhaps, I am not sure, the Court can understand Hungarian," added Judge Boyer which caused the jury-men and women's faces to light up with smiles. Witness Manning explained that his handwriting was "German-Hungarian" and the German touches were familiar to Judge Boyer.

William H. Schneller, of Catasauqua, a member of the Lehigh and Northampton County Bars, and William H. Satterthwaite, Jr., of town, are counsel for the defendant.

The defendant, who said he went to school 48 days, admitted that he has difficulty in reading and writing. "My wife kept the books," he explained. He admitted that he was discharged from bankruptcy in June, 1936, and said he has not signed any notes since that period.

The Negro denied that he had forged the names of the men and women on the various notes.

Upon cross-examination by Assistant District Attorney Willard S. Curtin, of Morrisville, the Negro admitted that he was arrested in 1925 on an assault and battery charge and in 1929 on a forcible entry charge.

Character witnesses for the Negro livestock dealer included Charles H. Unangst, 47, of near Bethlehem, who has served as County Treasurer, Sheriff and County Commissioner for Northampton county, and was a former supervising principal; Stanley Best, 49, Allentown salesman; Paul Beer, Danielsville, R. D. 1, auctioneer and railroad; Dr. J. J. Corkill, 61, Allentown veterinarian, and Joseph E. Gilder, of near Petersburg, all of whom said they never heard of the defendant having been in any previous trouble.

The arrests were confirmed by

Germany Announces Subjugation of Crete

Berlin, June 2—Nazi Germany today announced complete subjugation of Crete and termination of hostilities with Britain's "greatest defeat" since the war began.

Three thousand additional prisoners were taken when German Alpine troops smashed the last remaining British stronghold in the mountains north of Sphakion.

"The fighting in Crete has ended," an official bulletin said. "The entire island is now rid of the foe. German troops have occupied Sphakion—last base of the beaten enemy."

News of Germany's latest victory was flashed to the nation in an official broadcast over the national radio which contained a clear hint that Crete's collapse may indicate the vulnerability of England itself to invasion.

Military officials hailed the 12-day campaign as "the most unique military undertaking of the twentieth century—a demonstration that a modern army is capable of occupying a heavily defended and fortified island with airborne troops in the face of a powerful enemy fleet."

Jubilant in Germany was enhanced by Prime Minister Churchill's recent statement to the House of Commons that Crete would be defended to the death and held "at all costs." One German army official said—

"Vital Empire key points have fallen and the Axis has won a Mediterranean offensive springboard from which we will soon begin aerial attacks ranging along the whole African coast, Cyprus, Alexandria and Suez. The outcome of the battle in Crete will spur and expedite even greater decisions."

RAF Units Protect Evacuation From Crete

Cairo, June 2—RAF units were reported still in action today, protecting the last of the British evacuation from Crete, and striking heavily at German captured airmen along the length and breadth of the island.

All organized fighting on Crete was at an end with the German victory and the withdrawal of 15,000 British Imperial troops.

But the British, while admitting their own losses were severe, drew consolation from an official statement that the German losses, in men and material, were "enormous."

A senior RAF officer who returned to Egypt declared the Germans used at least 1,000 planes in their conquest of Crete and declared the number of German machines destroyed in the 12 days of furious fighting ran into the "hundreds."

On Saturday, over the middle of the eastern Mediterranean, it was stated, British fighters shot down at least seven German bombers and damaged others. The British admitted loss of four planes, including those which participated in raids on German strongholds in Crete and Axis targets in Africa.

With Crete lost, British Middle East forces hastily prepared to cope with expected new Axis attacks against the British island of Cyprus and against Alexandria and the Suez Canal.

Heavy Attack Made On Manchester

London, June 2—Droves of German bombers circled the northwestern manufacturing city of Manchester last night and early today, dropping many tons of high explosives and thousands of incendiaries in an attack that lasted several hours.

It was the heaviest attack this particular area has suffered in months. Two hospitals, several churches and commercial buildings were wrecked, as well as shops and a large number of workers' homes. Fires were quickly doused, however.

Act Makes Civilian Needs Secondary

Hyde Park, N. Y., June 2—President Roosevelt today signed an Act of Congress which makes civilian needs definitely secondary to the $40,000,000,000 British aid and national defense program. The measure gives the OPM authority to impose mandatory priorities on any goods needed to fulfill contracts with foreign governments.

Rites Unite Miss Cordisco And Mr. Felix Belardino

A resident of Jefferson Avenue became the wife of a Trenton, N. J., man yesterday, at a three o'clock ceremony conducted by the Rev. Fr. Peter Pinci in St. Ann's Church. Miss Josephine R. Cordisco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Cordisco, was the bride, she being wedded to Mr. Felix Belardino, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Belardino, of Trenton.

During the ceremony, Miss Mary Moncini, Pond street, offered as a vocal solo, "The Rosary."

Miss Angelina Cordisco attended her sister as bridesmaid; while Mr. Vincent Cordisco, brother of the bride, serving Mr. Belardino as best man.

A gown of white figured marquisette over satin was worn by the bride, who was given away by her father. At either side of the sweetheart neckline there was trim of orange blossoms; and the long sleeves ended in points over the hands. The dress featured a lengthy train. She wore a tiara of pearls and brilliant, to which was attached a long tulle veil. Her slippers were white kid, and she carried an arm bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid was attractive in blue figured marquisette over satin, the floor-length gown having a square neckline, and short sleeves. She wore a crown of pink pearls, with pink face veil; blue suede slippers; and carried pink rosebuds.

Following a reception at the Cordisco home, Mr. and Mrs. Belardino left for a week's motor tour. The bride travelled in a navy blue suit with white collar and blouse, navy blue straw hat, and accessories of navy blue and white. Her corsage was composed of white roses. The newlyweds will reside at 412 Hudson street, Trenton, N. J.

Mrs. Helen Illick Feted On Her 90th Anniversary

HULMEVILLE, June 2—A Hulmeville nonagenarian was honored on Saturday evening, Mrs. Helen Illick being tendered a party by members of her family, and a number of friends also being invited to the 90th birthday celebration at the Illick residence.

The guests were inclusive of: Mrs. Mary Witham, Oak Lane; Mrs. George Smith, Miss Helen Smith, Miss Helen Raub, Trenton, N. J.; Miss Lillie Geist, Miss Miriam Geist, Roxboro; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Geist and children Virginia and Richard, of Olney; Miss Nellie E. Main, Mrs. Lloyd Bucher and son Jean, South Langhorne; Dr. J. Theron Illick, and daughter Elisabeth, Syracuse, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stoop and children, Bristol; the Rev. and Mrs. Wilmer E. Harkness, the Misses Adilla Harkness, Adeline E. Reetz, Erda M. Schatt, Grace H. and Clara L. Illick, Hulmeville.

Colored pictures were shown by the Misses Reetz and Illick and Miss Virginia Geist pleased with recitations. Mrs. Illick was presented with many gifts; and later refreshments were enjoyed.

During the week-end seven of Mrs. Illick's eight daughters and sons visited her. Dr. Raymond Illick, of California, being unable to be present. Guests yesterday also included: Walter Illick, Upper Black Eddy; Mr. and Mrs. Orville Johnson, Bangor; Miss Martha Mylan, Rockledge; Warren Johnson, Columbia; Mrs. Anna Coxon, Frackville; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bush, Reading; Dr. and Mrs. William Donohoe and daughter Claire, Mrs. E. Declaring that the aggressor always has the advantage since he has the choice of time and spot in making an attack, Colonel Roger O. Mason, Post Commander of Doylestown Post No. 175, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and a member of the Doylestown Defense Council of Bucks County, speaking at a dinner meeting of the Doylestown Rotary Club Wednesday evening, said, "Germany must have complete control of the air and sea before she can make a successful attack and invade the British Isles."

Colonel Mason, who reviewed the war situation in Europe, said Germany has about six million men under arms and Great Britain about four million.

Speaking on general preparedness, Colonel Mason mentioned the work

Post Past-Commanders Are Honorary Bearers

With past commanders of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion, serving as honorary bearers, Miss Emily Bracken was laid to rest in Bristol Cemetery, on Saturday afternoon.

As the casket was borne from the home of the brother-in-law and sister of the deceased, Mr. and Mrs. Serrill D. Detlefson, 1215 Pond street, where services were held, members of the American Legion Auxiliary, with which organization the late Miss Bracken was affiliated, formed an aisle. Each Auxiliary member held in her hand a "Flander's Field" poppy. The Bracken Post was named in honor of the brother of Miss Bracken, who lost his life in France during World War I.

The Rev. James R. Gailey, pastor of Bristol Presbyterian Church, conducted the service, which was largely attended. Burial was made in Bristol Cemetery. On Friday evening services were conducted by the American Legion Auxiliary, of which the deceased was treasurer; and also by the Bucks County Salon, No. 74, of the 8th N. E. Society, of which Miss Bracken was a past president.

The active bearers were: William H. Fine, Ralph Keltch, William Griffith, Stanley Vansant, Albert G. Loechner, and James S. Douglass.

A large number of floral tributes were placed about the casket, these being sent by organizations with which the deceased was affiliated, and by relatives and friends.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Emasculation

Washington, May 31. ONCE more proof has been presented, if any were needed, that it is impossible to measure Mr. Roosevelt by the ordinary standards of logic and reason. Always it baffles those who try it. Again and again he has nullified his own policies and frustrated his declared purposes.

KNOWING this tendency of the President's, there is at the moment some apprehension lest he do exactly that, either through inaction or indecision, to the policy declared and the purpose announced in his speech of last Tuesday. On that night, in a ringing utterance heard around the world, he seemed to outline a course for the country—clear, unequivocal and adequate. It was overwhelmingly praised as an example of leadership. It evoked a warm response in every section, and his interpretative journalistic friends trumpeted loudly the following day that "the time for words has passed; the time for action has arrived."

AND so it appeared until the following afternoon when Mr. Roosevelt called a special press conference at the White House. The idea, as explained by his secretary, was to "clarify" certain parts of his address. But that is precisely what he did not do. On the contrary, he was as negative on Wednesday as he had been positive on Tuesday. He was not only vague but evasive. So far as the latter is concerned, he may be excused, for there is good reason for not answering questions as to navy plans to insure the delivery which he promised. But there seems no reason at all for being vague about questions such as what he purposes to do to make good on his

Being Fatally Hurt

Took First Ride On Machine of His Brother-in-Law

A young man narrowly escaped death early Saturday evening as he jumped on the motorcycle of his brother-in-law and in a playful spirit went for a ride. Today William Ford, 18, 274 Hayes street, is in the Harriman Hospital suffering with a broken left leg and contusions of the left leg.

Ford was entertaining his brother-in-law over the holiday week-end and the two were on Hayes street in front of the Ford home examining the motorcycle. Ford decided to take a ride although he had never been on the machine previously.

Ford rode the motorcycle out Hayes street toward Farragut avenue and then down Farragut and turned into Garfield street. As he reached the intersection of Garfield street and Wilson avenue he went to turn right into Wilson avenue. It is believed that he became excited and gave the machine more gas. The motorcycle shot across Wilson avenue and struck the front porch of the residence of Nelson Campbell, 1907 Wilson avenue.

Ford was thrown from the vehicle which was considerably damaged. The porch floor was broken, the railing knocked off and one of the posts supporting the roof torn down. A baby sat inside of the doorway but was not hurt.

Ford broke the upper portion of his left leg and may perhaps have sustained internal injuries.

He Sails A Toy
Boat

ONE HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

Two boys died in accidents in Bucks county during the week-end holiday. One of the deaths was due to drowning, while the other lad is reported to have run in front of an automobile and was killed.

The drowning victim was Frank Parson, Jr., 11, of 3306 North Mather street, Philadelphia, who disappeared in a small pond fed by Neshaminy Creek in Playwicky Park.

The lad was with his family at a picnic-outing, and was sailing a toy canoe in the water when he disappeared from sight.

His body was recovered by Private Theodore Jones, of the Langhorne Station, Pennsylvania Motor Patrol. Dr. Charles Sempel, of Bristol, deputy Bucks county coroner, issued an accidental drowning certificate.

The boy was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parson.

Four-year-old Robert M. Colica, of 509 Wharton street, Philadelphia, died of a skull fracture after he dashed on to the Lincoln Highway into the path of a car from between parked autos at Penn Valley Park, near Trevoze, the Pennsylvania Motor Patrol reported.

The child died at Nazareth Hospital, Philadelphia.

The driver of the car, Samuel Lessin, 43, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was released in $2,000 bail by Justice of the Peace John Brennan, of Feasterville, charged with involuntary manslaughter in the death of the child.

Granzow Dancers Busily Rehearsing for Recital

The Astaires, Powells and Zorinas of the Granzow Dancing Academy are having hectic times preparing for the sixth annual revue to be presented Friday night at 8:30 in the Grand Theatre. The pupils of the school are kept busy morning and night, rehearsing on the stage of the theatre before the regular "movie" time, then more rehearsals at either the Bristol or Croydon studios of Miss Granzow.

More than 200 colorful costumes of various description are being made and fitted to make this sixth annual revue a "professional" revue.

More than 100 pairs of feet will be tapping, prancing and swinging to music supplied by Jack Hart and his orchestra. There will be comedy, juggling, toe, classic ballets, rumba, conga, and many novelty dances of various rhythm and from many nations—all woven into two hours of entertainment for the large audience which is anticipated.

Tickets are on sale at the box office of the Grand Theatre, or may be purchased from pupils of the Granzow Dancing Academy.

Shower of Gifts Surprises Miss Marcinech, Hulmeville

HULMEVILLE, June 2—A surprise shower was tendered Miss Florence Marcinech, daughter of Mrs. Sally Marcinech, at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Marek, on Wednesday evening.

Forty-eight people were present from Philadelphia, Bristol, Newportville, Audubon, N. J., Trenton, N. J., South Langhorne, Parkland, and Hulmeville. A cold supper was served. Music was furnished by Edward Navarchi. The decorations were pink and blue, with flowers used as table decorations.

Miss Marcinech received many gifts.

TAKES FIRE EXTINGUISHER

PHILADELPHIA, June 2—(INS)—Francis Levan, 39, of Erie, today was held in $300 bail for a further hearing next Sunday on charges of stealing—a subway station's fire extinguisher. BACCALAUREATE TALK

High School Chorus and Orchestra Give Numbers at Sunday Ceremony

The baccalaureate service of the graduating class of 1941, Bristol high school, held in the high school auditorium yesterday afternoon, was attended by a large number of residents from Bristol and surrounding area.

The program featured a baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. Father Paul Baird, assistant rector of St. Mark's Catholic Church.

Special musical selections by the high school chorus and orchestra, and directed by Charles H. Quigley, director of music of Bristol school, were exceptionally well presented.

The sermon delivered by the Rev. Father Baird follows:

This is indeed a happy day and at the outset I am happy to congratulate the graduates upon their achievement of one of their goals. I want to congratulate the professors and members of the School Board, who ask nothing more of the graduates than they meet with success and finally a special word of congratulations to the parents whose self-denials and sacrifices made this day possible.

I am not going to confine my remarks solely to the graduates but rather to everyone here, because the professors, the School Board, the parents and the graduates all had an equally important and vital role in the accomplishment of this day.

These are troublous times. The political, economic, and social discussions of the present day you are more or less familiar with and I need not tarry to describe them. Suffice it to say that American Democracy is threatened from all sides, especially from within. We like to think that the graduates, these sterling young men and women will be the saviors of our Democracy, we know that in the youth of today lies the hope of the future. They are being graduated into a world that is full of discontent, disorder and violence. No matter how the war eventuates we in America will feel its effects severely and this important question arises—have we equipped these graduates, whom we are calling upon to be saviors of our Nation, with sufficient intellectual and moral training to fit them for the task?

I stress the moral training because it is the common experience of all right thinking men that whatever there be of good and—thanks be to God—there is much good in our American Democracy, can be attributed to the adherence to Christian moral principles.

These graduates may be called upon to bring about peace in this war torn world, a lasting peace that we all so

PAID FOR BY AMERICANS

Someone who quotes Hitler has said that he declared that preparation for battle in this war would not be heavy artillery barrage, as in the last war, but heavy propaganda.

He has proved the efficacy of this theory in every country he has taken—a propaganda of terror, confusion, and defeatism has been let loose in every country.

When the war broke out it was possible to obtain news that was truly informative and factually correct, but the technique of censorship soon destroyed this. As Hitler took over one country after another, the Lord Haw Haw stuff slowly but surely crept into the so-called news reports, and today it would be better if all the radio broadcasters in Berlin, Paris, Vichy, and other German-dominated countries were recalled.

The few broadcasters who really tried to get the news through to America were told to go home. Those who remain are forced to take official statements which are merely terrorist bulletins acceptable to the German censorship.

Having shoved the radio broadcasters into limitations confined to descriptions of mild German social habits, of German government-inspired editorials and news items in the German press and of official communiqués, the Nazis now have their propaganda directed at the United States paid for by the American broadcasting companies.

What is more, they are guaranteed a far greater American audience than if they were forced to send it via the short wave to the relatively few persons on this side of the Atlantic who listen to such tripe from Germany.

CHICAGO LABOR CASE

A Chicago Federal Court jury has decided that several building contractors and union labor leaders were guilty of violating the Sherman Anti-trust Law by agreeing to bar finished building stone from the Chicago market. The specific charge was that they refused to buy or lay cut stone from the Indiana field. They would handle it only when it was shipped to Chicago in quarry blocks and finished there. It was alleged that their purpose was to take work from Indiana stonecutters and give it to Chicago union members.

In the light of recent Federal legislation and United States Supreme Court decisions tending to exempt labor unions from all restraints of the Sherman and Clayton Anti-trust Acts, the verdict in this case is of great importance. Federal attorneys said that its importance is in the fact that "it is the last avenue for remedies for anti-trust prosecution against labor unions." The defendants announced, of course, that they will appeal.

Although the defendants did not offer evidence or testimony to disprove the Federal charges, it is clear from the case presented by the government that it believes another principle is involved. In this instance the unions were charged with forcing employers and builders to have raw material finished within the jurisdiction of the Chicago unions. If the verdict is reversed, other unions certainly will try the same thing, thus in effect setting up a trade barrier, identical to the colonial barriers which the people sought to abolish in the Constitution.

If the verdict stands, the people will have further reason to be grateful to the authors and champions of the Constitution.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Sept. 4, 1879. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

On Monday evening, about half-past eight o'clock, Frank Nelson, of Bristol, was run over, and killed, near Holmesburg Junction by the through train going west. Frank was employed as brakeman on a freight train, and while on a siding waiting for a passenger train to pass, he stepped off upon the track in front of the approaching train. He was killed instantly. He had been for some time past residing in Philadelphia, but considered Bristol where he was well known, as his home. He was about 27 years of age.

C. W. and J. Peirce are engaged largely in what is to them a new industry—the manufacture of ladies' and children's cloaks.

The cylinder of the locomotive of the Washington express train blew out near the Hollow Creek yesterday morning. No damage was done except to the cylinder. The next passenger train down took the cars of the disabled locomotive to the city.

Friends Quarterly meeting at Fallsington, last Thursday was well attended. Elizabeth Plummer, Elizabeth Paxson, a gentleman from New Jersey, and other speakers delivered interesting addresses.

Nelson Headley, son of J. Boyd Headley, was thrown from a loaded cart on his father's premises yesterday afternoon. The cart passed over his head, and it was feared his skull was fractured. His injuries were of so serious a nature that he survived but a few hours, dying during the night.

"Jimmy," a little son of Manus Waters, was playing on the logs in the canal basin, near Rogers' Mills, on Monday afternoon. He fell in the water, and although almost immediately Joseph Horn, who is employed at the mill, recovered the body, life was extinct. Every effort possible was made to revive him, but to no avail.

The Pontaxat Archer will shoot on Friday for a silver arrow, put up by the Misses Phillips, for the highest shot. We hear that Mrs. Beatty will offer a quiver for the highest shot that never won a prize.

During the heavy storm the latter part of August, the schooner, Annie E. Stephens, of which Lewis Tice, of our borough, is captain, narrowly escaped sinking. The vessel was secured and towed into Norfolk, Va., by a revenue cutter for repairs.

Captain Walter Scott, of the third ward, expects to start for Wilmington, N. C. on Saturday, with the steamer Thomas A. Morgan, now a tug boat, but formerly a passenger boat plying between Philadelphia and Bristol. Captain Scott will be absent all winter, and perhaps for 19 months.

A double wedding took place at the residence of George White, at Laurel Bend, a little way out of Bristol, on Tuesday evening, when Frank Wright was married to Miss Ida Headley, daughter of J. Roy Headley, and Spencer Hibbs was united to Miss Lilly Wright. The wedding party left yesterday for Ocean Grove, intending to visit Long Branch and Coney Island before their return. Last night telegrams were sent over the wires summoning the young people home on account of the sudden death of Nelson Headley, a brother of one of the brides.

Reed and rail birds have suffered greatly in our neighborhood since Monday, when the season for shooting began. The marshes have been alive with sportsmen eager to get a shot at the innocent little birds. . . . A boat arranged in a very completed manner for a gunning expedition came up on the Columbia on Sunday afternoon, accompanied by some men who desired to be on hand early when the battle opened. Unfortunately for them, but fortunately for the birds, another boat which was to have been brought to Bristol was run into by the yacht Minerva, of Camden, and sunk, nothing being saved from it but the guns.

statement that strikes in defense contracts must not be permitted when there are thirty two on army contracts alone in progress at this time.

PEDES letting it be known that he is not planning any direct steps now to implement his anti-strike declaration, he also made it clear that he has no further ideas as to speeding up or co-ordinating the defense organization, which, it is generally agreed, is confusedly and incompetently administered. In addition, he flatly asserted that he has no intention of asking Congress for either repeal or modification of the Neutrality Act, although that act absolutely blocks the freedom of the seas, to sustain which traditional

The Spring's Big Story—Ensembles Slipcovers

What have you planned to do about your slip covers? For slip covers have walked into the limelight and are so full of economical turns and twists that you just can't overlook them.

If your furniture needs protection from summer dust, if some pieces are shabby, if others are old-fashioned, if it's brass beds you have, if it's an ugly but convenient table, the answer to one and all is—slip cover.

Look at your room with a critical eye, decide what its type is. I didn't say period, that's a different matter. But just general type as to whether it's a formal room, an informal room, an adobe room, an Early American room, or a modern room. This is necessary so that you can choose the sort of fabric that not only is suitable but also will make something distinctive out of your room. It isn't a matter of money either, for as often as not it's the gay or sombre color and pattern that counts most. In almost any type of living room you'll have two easy chairs and a sofa, not to mention curtains. "Should they all be of one material?" I hear you ask. "How about one color? I do find it so hard to be sure what colors will go together."

Just let me say right here that the last year lots of the guess work has been taken out of these very real problems by the manufacturers' ensemble groups, their color charts, the sister prints, etc. So go to your shops, especially the decorating corner if there is one, and ask to see what they have. The chances are you'll find (and I would certainly advise,) the use of three harmonizing fabrics in a living room. The curtains and two chairs let us say, may be in one of the lovely floral patterns in chintz or cretonne, either with a colored background, or a white one. In a room with pale yellow or cream walls, a fabric with a blue or a white ground with yellow in it would be good, while with blue walls, a yellow background is nice. Put the sofa either in a solid-colored heavy twill or in a striped chintz designed to harmonize with the curtains—the sister print perhaps. Use a little solid color somewhere for a stool, a side chair or perhaps a slip cover that ugly table. The new idea for instance, borrowed from the Victorians, is to put a circular skirt on a round table, cording it at the edge of the table with a fringe at the floor.

Dress Up Your Ugly Bed in Slipcover and Spread

If you think you have rather a nightmarish bedroom with brass beds or unattractive beds and want to do the room up, it's a comparatively simple matter to cut off the too-high headboards and use the foot board as head of the bed and make yourself, or have made, box slip covers of flowered chintz lined with a substantial material. Usually the secret of a good fit is to have a buckram strip across the top between the fabric and the lining. This is what is called "the box"—it gives width. If you use flowered material for the head board have a plain bedspread with a flowered valance. If your curtains are flowered, it's fun to have a dressing table in front of the window with a gathered skirt either of plain material or of a striped pattern designed to match the chintz.

Unpainted dressing tables are very inexpensive and when attractively covered do a lot for a room. Small triple-mirrors to be fastened to the table at the back cost only a few dollars. Another way of course, is just to cover a shelf or, an old or an ugly table. This slip covering is a regular Cinderella of an idea. Why you can even cover a soiled lamp shade!

American doctrine he has pledged himself. Also he insisted that "freedom of the seas" does not mean that American ships shall be allowed to go where they would likely be sunk.

CONSIDERING these things, one cannot but wonder what in the world the President did mean by his solemn revival of the "freedom-of-the-seas" doctrine, which we abandoned when we laid down a national policy of rigid neutrality. If, now that that policy has been scrapped, the Neutrality Act is not to be changed, and if American ships are still to be kept out of the war zones, where something might happen to them, why did he bring the subject up at all? What does he mean by freedom? And what seas has he in mind? Those who heard him at the press conference were unable to answer these questions.

MOST of them were baffled by the President's words and confused by the effort of trying to reconcile his positive statements of Tuesday night with his negative statements of Wednesday afternoon. Certainly it must be confessed that the plan to hold the Neutrality Act while proclaiming the freedom of the seas is baffling indeed. And if American vessels are to go only in safe waters, what was that freedom-of-the-seas part of the President's speech about, anyhow? Actually, that special press conference seemed designed to convey the impression that no swift action of any sort to implement the President's words will be taken immediately. It clarified nothing at all.

THIS strange transition from the positive to the negative did not greatly surprise those who have observed closely the President's reaction to his own speeches in the past. They recalled his curious disposition to think that when a speech has been made on an important subject, or a man has been named to a high post, the job has been largely done. They recalled, too, that months ago, after he had announced his defense organization and told the people that speed was the essential thing, he went away for six weeks, leaving the organization in such state that it hardly functioned at all. They recalled, also, his insistence in January that every non-defense governmental expenditure must be "pared to the bone" and how he then proceeded to make a joke of that statement by putting in a trick budget that actually increased the non-defense expenditures.

AND he followed that up by signing the great farm grab bill and forcing the passage of the Office of Government Reports bill, increasing its appropriation one hundred per cent, and adding 140 new jobholders to its pay roll. Recalling these and other instances in which the President has talked one way and acted the other, that he did not follow his great speech of Tuesday with the indicated action is not surprising. It is typical of Mr. Roosevelt to swing from the positive to the negative; to make the speech, to call a press conference at which he denies the logical deductions from his words, and then rush off to Hyde Park. Perhaps when he returns next week he at least will explain how he is going to enforce freedom of the seas and at the same time cling to the Neutrality Act. Or perhaps he will explain how a nation which has ceased to be neutral can insist upon freedom of the seas, and so on. No one else can explain it.

SYNOPSIS

Colorful report has made gay Marie Schuyler practically the world's current Glamour Girl No. 1 as she cruises the Mediterranean aboard her palatial yacht, Serenas—holding court as a future queen of American millions with more to come. Her principal guest is Felix Norheim, a mysterious figure in international affairs. Meanwhile Marie's guardians, cooperating secretly with the government, have assigned Tony Worth, a young lawyer, for "special service" in safeguarding Miss Schuyler. He is now en route to the Riviera via liner and has been "tipped off" to watch the alluring Baroness Theresa Lascar, who was pointed out at the pier by Ed Keeler, intelligence agent.

CHAPTER SEVEN

The liner touched at Gibraltar with only three more days to go before landing at Naples. Tony received a radiogram from Ed Keeler, which said, "Action please." Did they expect him to search her cabin or make love to her until she told him all?

In disgust at his failure thus far, Worth wandered into the club bar, after dinner. Plenty of pretty girls there. A sweet kid in blue waved, calling him over to join her group. Tony was about to make a night of it with them, when he saw Theresa Lascar.

Perhaps loneliness had driven La Lascar from cover, for once. But she went by Tony's table as if oblivious to surroundings. Then, in the doorway, she dropped her evening bag. Worth rose from his party with a hurried excuse. By the time he reached the door, the Baroness had retrieved her bag and was gone. A lace handkerchief lay in a corner. Tony picked it up, its perfume, carnation.

What a break! She couldn't refuse to thank him for returning a bit of valuable lace. But she was nowhere to be found on the decks or in the saloons. So at last, determined not to miss his chance, Tony slipped a ten-lire bill to a steward who gave him the deck and number of Madame Lascar's apartment.

The corridor was empty. Tony hesitated before her door which stood ajar. Then he knocked softly. And things happened. A man bolted through the door, ramming Tony aside. The man's footsteps tapped around a corner; faded . . .

Behind Tony, someone gasped, "Luigi!" And Madame Lascar streaked by into the dimly lit living room the intruder had just left. Unnoticed, Tony followed.

A woman in a white robe lay on the couch, apparently asleep. Four long-stemmed white carnations had been placed in the crook of her arm, the flowers resting on the cushion. With a sweeping movement, Theresa Lascar seized the bunch and flung it in a far corner.

"Anna!" she cried, bending over the couch. "Anna!" Her back was turned on Tony as she tried to rouse the woman. (Talking of spies, he thought, what am I?)

Anna sat up, rubbing her eyes, and murmuring in a daze, "I took sleeping tablets, My headache—"

"Thank heavens, Anna!" Madame Lascar sighed. "I was afraid for you."

Worth held his breath, in the shadow near the door. He felt pretty rotten. Something glittered at his feet. He reached down. It was a small, empty perfume bottle, smelling of carnations. He slipped it in his pocket. They hadn't noticed him yet.

Madame Lascar, her back still to him, spoke in a low voice. "It was Luigi. He mistook you for me in this light. He must have had orders, but his expression remained candid, to follow us—orders!" She stood a moment as if stunned. "The four white carnations," she whispered, putting her hand on Anna's shoulder. "Four—the Japanese shi—you don't know what that means, Anna—shi means four and four means death. Yes, it is the warning from him. He has done this to me! I can't believe it!"

Tony edged to the corner, where the flowers lay, and tried vainly to break one from its long stem. They were artificial, beautifully wrought in silk, and perfumed. From Norheim? Who else?

The women were murmuring, absorbed in shock. He decided it wiser at this time not to interfere, so he left the carnations and tiptoed toward the door, planning to steal out and knock again, as if he had just arrived. He had almost reached the door when his elbow struck against

"Oh, that!" she said, lightly. She walked over to the flowers and came back with them, smiling. "I was angry because I do not like jokes," she confessed. "They are not real—you see? A friend sent them, who does not usually—play jokes."

"Oh, in that case—" Tony murmured. She was a magnificent dissembler. Something of what he had felt for her died. He made as if to go and then turned. "Surely we have some mutual friends," he said. "Perhaps you know Marie Schuyler?"

"Schuyler?" she repeated in a sharper tone. "I'm afraid not." Her eyes grew suspicious and she pinched in her scarlet mouth, glancing down at the carnations she was forcing herself to hold. "I know few people on board," she added, with a faint shrug. Her manner dismissed him. But when he stepped a chair. The Baroness whirled. "What are you doing here?" she demanded. Her eyes blazed, enormous in her white face.

Tony thought fast. He held out the lace handkerchief. "You dropped this outside the Lido bar," he explained. "Please forgive this intrusion, but you didn't hear me knock," he added. "My name is Anthony Worth. I've been hoping for a chance to meet you."

The Baroness took the wisp of lace, staring at him, her poise recovered. In his well-cut dinner clothes, he appeared only as a good-looking young man who had admired her from a distance, and who had now found a pretext to break the barriers. "You are very kind," she said wearily, "but I must ask you to excuse me. It is late, and I am tired."

Tony looked at her steadily. Suppose this Luigi came back; suppose she was in actual danger tonight. He said, on impulse, "Are you quite sure you're safe—with those in the room?" He pointed to the carnations, and admitted, "I'm afraid I've been indiscreet. I was standing here when you said something to your maid about a warning."

Her fine eyes narrowed upon him, but his expression remained candid,

Nelson-Riedel Wedding Is A Saturday Evening Event

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Jeanne Riedel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Riedel, 255 East Circle, became the bride of Mr. George W. Nelson, at a seven o'clock ceremony in Harriman Methodist Church, Saturday evening.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nelson, of 247 Roosevelt street. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Edward K. Knetter, pastor of the church; and organ music was provided by Mrs. Alfred Rogers.

Miss Eunice Ferguson, East Circle, attended the bride as maid of honor; and serving Mr. Nelson as best man was Mr. John Streeper, Roosevelt street.

White organdy was the choice of the bride for her wedding gown, which had attached to the form-fitting bodice a full skirt, floor length. The neckline was cut square, and the short sleeves were puffed. From her beaded tiara fell a tulle veil edged in lace. White kid slippers were worn, and the former Miss Riedel carried an arm bouquet of lilies.

Miss Ferguson, the maid of honor, wore yellow organdy, the dress having a hoop skirt and short sleeves. Tiny aqua velvet bows appeared at the neckline and were scattered over the skirt. A floral headpiece and silver slippers were worn, and the attendant carried yellow roses.

A reception was held at the home of the groom's parents, after which the newlyweds left for a week-end trip. The travelling costume of the bride included a white-dotted brown sports dress, white hat, and white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson will reside with the former's parents.

SUNDAY DINNER
Suggestions

One of the newest nutritional warnings is against unbalanced diets in summer—diets deficient in minerals, vitamins and proteins. The body needs its daily supply of these essentials in summer as in winter. Hence, new emphasis is being placed on meat as the centerpiece of summer meals, because it provides all three of these factors.

When planning your Sunday meals for your family, then, you might take advantage of the special prices on many meats being offered this week by one of the largest of the food chains. Broilers and fryers are special values in the poultry departments, and other meat weekend values include ribs, steaks, navel beef, brisket, and many veal and lamb cuts.

Special emphasis, too, must be placed on vegetables as "spring tonics." Offered at low prices this week are carrots, celery, new cabbage, radishes, scallions, spinach, rhubarb and iceberg lettuce.

Especially attractive prices will be found this week on strawberries. Argentine pears and grapes are new in the market this week, and are reasonably low.

Marion Rouse Budd, director of the A and P kitchen, has worked out the following menus as suggestions for next Sunday dinner:

Low Cost Dinner
Mixed Fruit Juices
Braised Pork Chops in Casserole with Green Peppers, Rice and Tomatoes
Asparagus with French Dressing in Lettuce Cups
Bread and Butter
Cream Tapioca with Bananas
Tea or Coffee

Moderate Cost Dinner

Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

Our Father who art in heaven, who hast bestowed upon us the dear comfort of earthly friends; look in Thy mercy upon those we love who are far away. Protect and keep them in all danger of body and of soul; prosper and bless them in all things good; suffer them never to be lonely, desolate or afraid; let no shadow come between them and us, to divide our hearts; and, in Thine own good time, grant that we may renew our fellowship on earth, and at last be united in the felicity of heaven; through Jesus Christ our Lord. ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

The power and fury of the ranging sea surged from Jack London's pen as he wrote his most famous novel "The Sea Wolf," and the new screen version of the story which had its first showing last night at the Grand, has translated that power and fury into the most dramatic and thrilling screen entertainment of the year.

One thought kept every hate-ridden man in the crew of "The Ghost" alive

—it was to see Wolf Larsen lead. A merciless tyrant, he ruled his shanghaied crews with methods that remind us of today's totalitarian dictators. Yet he is the possessor of a keen mind and an indomitable will. Through the genius of Edward G. Robinson's brilliant portrayal, Larsen comes to the screen a real-life character. Ida Lupino, who is fast proving herself one of the most accomplished dramatic stars in films today, manages to make the drab little castaway a memorable character.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Loaded with swift-paced gags and several brand new hit tunes, Paramount's new comedy with music,

"Road to Zanzibar," opened Sunday at the Bristol Theatre.

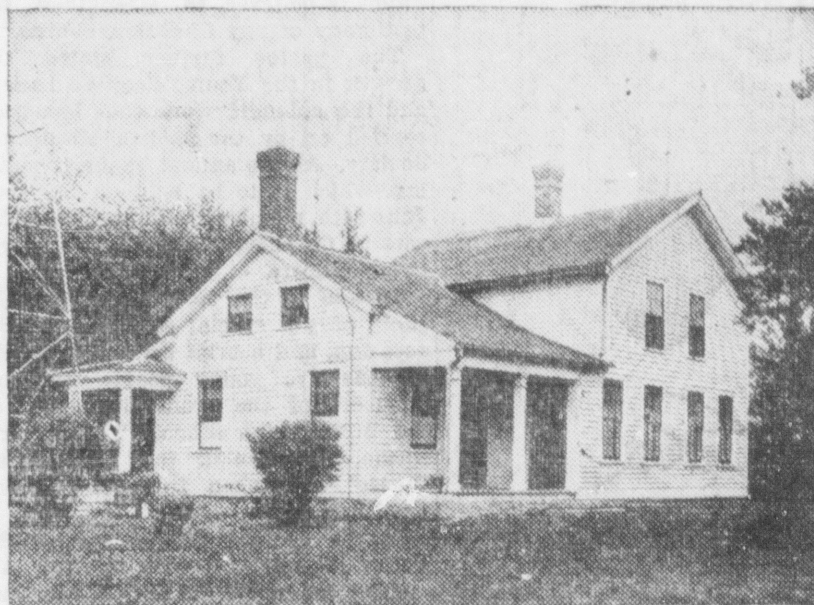

Starring Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour, three of the screen's best entertainers, the film is easily one of the funniest that has come along this season.

There are all kinds of modernizing jobs—some call for far-reaching structural changes . . . others for change of detail only.

This home is an example of style improvement through detail alteration. In the original state this home is just drab and uninteresting.

This kind of a house is easy to modernize because we have an opportunity to substitute ideas for money.

Surprisingly little has been done to revise this old house into a comfortable country or suburban estate.

The overhanging eaves have been eliminated; two windows on the facade have been closed up, shutters added, and falsework built around the narrow little chimneys, bringing them into good proportion.

The garage addition is not an essential for the modernizing job, but does add greatly to its appearance through elongation.

It is important for the budgeting homemaker to find attractive ways to stretch the meat dollar. The cheaper cuts are a great help, and also foods which combine with meats and thus extend their values. Most of these less expensive cuts of meat require longer cooking; however, if they are ground or chopped they may be cooked top-of-the-stove style in double-quick time. A grand food with which to combine these inexpensive meats is the prepared cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese. Its tangy sauce adds flavor to these less juicy meats and the tender strands of spaghetti make it go farther. Try this recipe:

Combination Meat and Spaghetti Platter

Fry together in skillet with fat—
1/2 pound fresh sausage
1/2 pound ground beef.

Season with—
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper.

Add—
1 large (24-oz.) can cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce.

Stir as little as possible, keeping covered while heating. Turn out on platter with meat on top. Just before serving, sprinkle with—
Grated sharp cheese.

Serves 4.

New Spring Salads

You can always depend on a salad to give a menu a lift. That is what these combinations of color, crispness and piquancy are for. Here are some new ones just out. The Fresh Spinach Salad with Relish French Dressing is gay as can be with its dark green leaves touched up by bits of white celery and the highlights of the shiny oil dressing containing India relish. The other gives you a new slant on cabbage slaw, with fresh cucumber pickle and mayonnaise for its tartness.

Fresh Spinach Salad

Shred—
1/2 pound fresh uncooked spinach

1/2 head lettuce.
Toss together lightly with—
1/2 cup celery sliced crosswise.
Mix with Relish French Dressing (recipe below) and serve. Serves 4 or 6.

Relish French Dressing

Combine—
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/2 cup pure olive oil
1/2 cup pure cider vinegar
Few drops Worcestershire sauce

3 tablespoons India relish.
Shake together in a jar or beat with a rotary egg beater. Serve on green and vegetable salads.

Cabbage and Cucumber Pickle Salad

Combine and mix thoroughly—
3 cups shredded cabbage
1 green pepper, shredded
10 slices fresh cucumber pickle, chopped

1 tablespoon grated onion
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons mayonnaise.

Arrange in cups of crisp lettuce and sprinkle with paprika. Serves 6.

Note: One cup shredded carrots may be substituted for one cup of the cabbage.

Vegetable Variety

For new variety in the vegetables you serve this spring, try this recipe for Mexican Onions in which tomato ketchup adds savor and spice to the cream sauce.

Mexican Onions

3 medium Bermuda onions.
Cook in large amount of boiling salted water until tender. Drain in collander, then run hot water through them.

To make sauce, melt in pan—
4 tablespoons butter.

Add, blending well—
2 tablespoons flour.

Cook until bubbling, then add—
1 1/2 cups milk.

Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened.

Add—
1/2 cup tomato ketchup
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper.

Add onions to sauce and cook until heated through. Serve hot as creamed vegetable. Serves 8.

BRISTOL HIGH IX TO MEET SOUTHAMPTON IN TITLE GAME HERE

Locals Play Upper End Winners in Game at Landreth Field

HOPKINS MAY PITCH

Bristol Out To Sting Greyhounds and Nab the Championship

By Jack Gill

The first tussle in a three-game series to determine who shall rule the championship roost in the Lower Bucks County baseball league gets underway at Landreth Field at six o'clock this evening. The principle combatants will be Bristol and Southampton high schools.

The "Bunny Hop," symbolic of championship ball in any type athletic warfare at Bristol, is set to make a return engagement should the local larpuppers take two of these three games. Southampton, after winning the Upper Division laurels in a hot three-way fight for the title, comes to town with a balanced ball club.

Jimmy Hopkins, capable, steady and at times a scintillating mound performer, will no doubt get the call from Coach Tom Campion to pitch for the home clan. Coach Claude Lodge, Greyhound mentor, will probably counter with a lad by the name of Schweinfurth, who, if he is as good as his name is long, will have a tough time making the headlines. His moniker just won't fit.

The Cardinals have been travelling at a clip that somewhat resembles Barney Ewell in the 4A games. Coming down the stretch in a red hot pennant drive, they catapulted or pole vaulted from third to first place. Instrumental in their determined drive for the Lower Division title were Hopkins, Yates and big Paul Ruby.

The local's infield combination of Herby Yates at third, Wendell Tazik at short, Bob Barouth at second, and Joops Mangiaricini at first has been clicking smoothly. Due to their steadiness, the Bristol club may have zoomed into a successful unit. Vince Boccadoro, Paul Ruby and Joe Accardi will start in the outer garden. Armand Capriotti will man the mask.

Southampton will start R. White at first, Gross at the keystone, L. White at short, and L. Davis at the hot corner. D. Davis will be in center, Pearson in right and Lynch in left. Duane "Droopy" Davis may be an outside pitching choice instead of a middle garden starter.

ST. ANN'S NINE STILL LEADS SUBURBAN GROUP

The fifth week of Bristol Suburban Baseball League finds the St. Ann's A. team still leading the pack as one-half of the first half schedule is completed. The Saints have won five and lost but one to maintain a full game edge over Diamond, Sporting Goods and Edgely, the teams which are deadlocked for second place.

In one of the scheduled games to-night, St. Ann's will meet Edgely on the latter's field and a lot will hinge on the outcome of the fracas as a defeat for the Wood streeters will place Edgely in a deadlock with them. In the other scheduled tilt, the Odd Fellows meet the Rohm & Haas team. The Odd Fellows are resting in seventh place but have a protested game with the Auto Boys and it is victorious in this, they will be among the leaders.

Last week saw the league's leading hurler, "Mike" DeKist, suffer his first defeat in five starts. The Diamond team won over Mike, 2-1, the St. Ann's hurler being out-pitched by "Lefty" Keogan. However, a 2-1 victory isn't a hard defeat to take and if Mike continues his fine hurling with a little help from Paul Cerevello and Tony Rotundo, the Saints will be the team to beat out for first position.

The most important change in the teams' roster saw "Parrot" Dick released from the Edgely team to sign with Rohm & Haas. The chemical workers now have the best staff in the league in Dick, Gallagher, Holland, Kryven and Petrick.

To make up for the releasing of Dick, Manager Eddie DeKoy, of the Edgelyites went to Trenton to sign up Don Gulick. Several years ago Don was one of the best throwers in Trenton and vicinity and whether he is as good as then, remains to be seen. Edgely also signed up Eddie Bergmann.

Coach Tom Campion, of the Bristol high school, has signed with the Voltz Texaco team. Manager Morgan of the Auto Boys has signed Harry Barouth and released Lynford Woolvin, Jr. Other changes were as follows: Odd Fellows, released Bill Irwin and William Hibba and signed Ike Watson and Eddie Sullivan; Diamond, released Dugan, Luciano and Richmond, and signed Keogan and Antonelli; Fleetwings, released McVaine and signed P. VanArman; Rohm & Haas, released Cyril McCracken and Al Brown.

Games tonight are scheduled to begin at 6:30 o'clock sharp.

Washington, June 2—Sen. Norris, I. Neb., leader of the Congressional liberal bloc, today urged President Roosevelt to take over strike-bound defense plants, and "settle the differences afterwards."

Norris, who has supported labor legislation throughout his long Congressional career, said that "regardless of who is to blame" in some of the labor disputes "defense production must go on."

Injured Man's Inquiry Reveals Wife's Death

Carlisle, June 2—A husband's mumbled inquiry for his wife as he lay critically injured in a Carlisle hospital today enabled police to recover the body of Dorothy K. Reike, 28, Baltimore, Md., from a wrecked automobile in a five-foot deep mill race near Carlisle.

The car, driven by Maurice G. Reike, 27, failed to negotiate a slippery curve early today and crashed into a bridge rail, throwing him from the car which skidded into the water. Police were unaware that Reike's wife was in the automobile until he momentarily regained consciousness in the hospital.

Pope Stands Firm For A "New Order"

Vatican City, June 2—Pope Pius XII stood firm today for a "new order" following the present war, with material goods and the men who produce them distributed more equitably over the earth.

In a special Encyclical broadcast over the Vatican radio, His Holiness called for a post-war society based on principles laid down by Pope Leo XIII in his Encyclical "Rerum Novarum."

Church Membership Tripled in 3 Years

the church had made during its three years of ministry. "At the time of the church's conception, 35 members constituted the entire membership. At present the church has reached a total of 90 members, each giving a testimony as to their having accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as their own personal Saviour. The average attendance during the past year was as follows: morning service, 119; Sunday evening, 129; prayer meeting averaged between 65 and 75 regularly during the past year." The pastor stated that he believed God had honored the ministry because the people who constituted the church were faithful in prayer, the prayer meeting being the foundation of all successful soul-winning. The Sunday School also has made remarkable progress, reaching a membership of 117.

There was much cause for rejoicing when the financial status of the church was made known. During its ministry the church has contrived over $1,000 to foreign and home missions. At this point the pastor said that he always found God's greatest blessing in the church that gave liberally to the missionary enterprise, that faithfully preached the true Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Last year the plot of ground was purchased at Pond street and Wilson avenue in anticipation of erecting a church building. This was a cash transaction, with all of the money coming in solely and only through free-will offerings. At no time has the church ever sold anything or used any worldly means to raise funds, the House of the Lord being set aside for the preaching of the Gospel and the fellowship of God's children. Since the calling of the church's first and present pastor, it has fully supported him and his family. A fine balance in bank is enjoyed at present in anticipation of beginning building proceedings in the near future. The church has never been in debt, which condition is believed to strengthen the testimony of any Christian church."

The pastor further stated the growth in the Young People's society and the splendid work that has been carried on by the Ladies Missionary Society. At the annual business meeting, which is to be held on Tuesday, June 24th, members will elect new officers to fill the vacancies made by retiring officers.

To add to the morning service the choir sang a special selection for the occasion, and a brief service was held for the five young people who are members of the graduating class of the Bristol high school. The pastor's theme, "Embracing the Lord Jesus Christ" was taken from the Church Covenant.

In the evening Gospel service the Young People's Church of the Air quartet conducted the song service and played special selections.

Private Joseph V. McCann, of the Bethlehem sub-station of the Pennsylvania Motor Police, who spent nearly three months investigating the case, over the telephone during court on Thursday afternoon.

Lieutenant Stanley S. Smith, of Harrisburg, of the Pennsylvania Motor Police, handwriting identification expert, said no attempt was made to copy the outstanding characteristics of the various individuals' signatures.

"The name of Latshaw was incorrectly spelled 'Lautshaw' and the 't' in Sutton were not crossed as Mr. Sutton crosses them," said Lieutenant Smith.

Strongest witness for the Commonwealth was Warren M. Dunbar, 61-year-old Carbon county farmer, who lives at Leighton, R. D. No. 3, who said he has had numerous transactions with the defendant and when he received notice to pay something on the $312 notes, went to see the defendant.

"I told Walker I don't owe you anything and you have no notes against me," said Dunbar. "Walker said to me, 'Keep away from Quakertown and if you get any more notes from Fred P. Fisher don't take them out of the mail box.'" Dunbar testified.

John Sutton, 48, Bath, R. D. No. 2, a steel worker, denied that he had signed the $135 note and said that neither he nor his wife was aware of the existence of the note until the Sheriff came to make a levy on their furniture. His wife, Ida Sutton, said the Sheriff came to their home December 10, 1939, to levy on their property and that was the first time they knew of the note.

Fred Manning, Nazareth, R. D. No. 1, Hungarian farmer, who speaks with a decided accent, said that he learned of his $71 note in 1940.

David Latshaw, 49, Danielsville, and his wife, Minnie, 51, said they never heard of the note until notices came. All of the victims had at one time or another done business with the defendant who had in his possession former notes of theirs from previous transactions.

Private McCann testified that on April 10th he took three notes from Fred P. Fisher, Quakertown cattle and farm implement dealer, to the Bureau of Criminal Investigation of the P. M. P., in Harrisburg, where the handwriting was given expert analysis by Lieutenant Smith.

County Detective John R. Ruppert, of Northampton county, testified he took another note, which had been filed in the Prothonotary's office in the Easton Court House, for investigation to Harrisburg on April 10th. This note involved the levying on the Suttons' property.

Judge Boyer over-ruled a motion for a directed verdict of not guilty made by counsel for the defendant, Mr. Scheller and Mr. Satterthwaite, and directed the case to continue.

Graduates Told That God Must Permeate Lives

earnestly desire, but is their education sufficient? The proper education of men and women has a broader meaning than the mere cultivation of mental powers. Love of country, love of ones' fellows ennoble a man and enrich the world but the supreme thing is moral education, the recognition, the acceptance and the practice of God's laws. Have these graduates sufficient moral education to know that "peace" must be based upon a comprehensive program of restoring Christ to His true and proper place in society; they must bring God back into government; they must bring God back into education; they must bring God back into economic life; they must bring God back into all life, private and public, individual and social. The truth of God, the law of God, the justice, mercy and charity of God must be made to permeate our existence.

If these young men and women are not prepared to meet the exigencies of the future who are at fault? Oh—seldom in all our history do such deep responsibilities rest on the shoulders of the educators, of the parents and the future parents.

Does the task of proper education belong to individuals merely? No! It must of necessity belong to three classes of society—the family, the State and the Church. These three forms of society which are necessary, while differing from one another, should in reality be knit together. The family holds first place by its very nature. The duties of the parents toward their children flow from the law of nature itself, they have to see to their children's proper education, especially their religious and moral education. The State facilitates education for the common good of the individual families; it erects schools, provides teachers, etc., in other words the State has to provide the family with what it requires. It is the duty and the right of the family to elect worthy Christian men to supervise their children's proper education. Think of the trust you parents are placing in the hands of educators. You profess Christianity but do the men you have placed in this position of trust uphold your Christian ideals?

The first two forms of society, the parents and the State, you are more or less familiar with. What about the third form? The Church. The fact that an invitation is extended to clergymen to conduct appropriate religious graduation services is one proof that this third form of society, the Church, is recognized as of necessity. In other words, all the intellectual education in the world without the Church's moral principles as a guiding force is empty and no real education. A man educated intellectually but not morally, may become more dangerous than before. No one can be called truly learned who is ignorant of the laws of God and their practice. Just as the family and the State receive their power from God so does the Church. In the midst of human society God has set His Church as "the pillar and ground of truth." To the Church Christ has given the divine mission to teach all things whatsoever He has commanded. This obligation takes in the actions of man in his private and public life, as an individual and as a member of society. Inasmuch as the Church has the right to act as the teacher of moral law from God Himself it presupposes that that right be recognized by the family and the State.

Again I ask the question—are these graduates whom we expect to be the saviors and bulwark of our nation, equipped with proper moral as well as intellectual training?

As the influences exerted by education may be for good or bad, rests upon the educators and the parents the awful responsibility of so directing it that it must always be for the common good. There is no better way to serve your country's interest than by sowing in the hearts of young men and women the seeds of Christian virtue to which all learning must be subservient.

And now, my dear graduates, a word to you in particular. These stressing times call for sturdy Christian men and women. We need men who are controlled by conscience rather than by expediency, men who are guided by moral principle rather than popularity, men who are influenced by the sense of duty not self interest, men who are swayed by a spirit of true patriotism rather than the desire of political preferment. In a word we need men and women of upright Christian character, positive Christians.

If your character is above reproach, you will win the battle of Life. You may not attain distinction, but distinction is not a criterion of genuine success. Your name may not be emblazoned on the fading pages of earthly history but what is infinitely better, it will be inscribed in the imperishable records of the Book of Life. "What doth it profit a man if he gain the whole world and suffer the loss of his own soul?"

The dispute over the wages due Carson soon lined the employees of the circus up on two sides. One side favored Grueberg while the other side backed Carson. It was for this reason that the Pennsylvania Motor Police were called.

Grueberg posted $260 cash bail for his appearance before Justice of Peace James Laughlin, tonight.

The dispute was at its height when the circus was being dismantled and the attachment was served at three o'clock yesterday morning.
